

From a cognitive perspective, annotation has an important role in learning and instruction. As part → of guided noticing it involves highlighting, naming or labelling and commenting aspects of visual representations to help focus learners' attention on specific visual aspects. In other words, it means the assignment of typological representations (culturally meaningful categories), to topological representations.

MB

Maik Berndt

Can we find some examples of topological representations?

